Monday, February 25. 1723.

London, February 25.

THE following is an Extract of a Letter dated the 13th of November 1722, from Port-Royal in Jamaica, containing further Particulars of the late terrible Storm which happened in that Iſland.

SINCE my laſt to you the Affairs of this Iſland are altered infinitely for the worſe. This Change has been made by a moſt terrible Storm, that happened the 28th of Auguſt laſt. The Damage which the Iſland has ſuffered by it, is too great to be eaſily repaired again. Abundance of People have loſt their Lives by it in one part or other of this Iſland: Some of whom were daſhed in Pieces by the ſudden Fall of their Houſes; but the much greater Part were ſwept away by the terrible Inundation of the Sea, which being raiſed by the Violence of the Wind to a much greater Height than was ever known before, in many Parts of the Iſland broke over its ancient Bounds, and of a ſudden overflowed large Tracts of Land, carrying away with an irreſiſtible Fury, Men, Cattle, Houſes, and in ſhort, every Thing that ſtood in its Way. In this laſt Calamity, the unfortunate Town of Port-Royal has had at leaſt its full Share. And here I confeſs myſelf at a loſs for Words to give a juſt Deſcription of the Horrour of that Scene that we the Inhabitants ſaw before our Eyes, when the Terrour of the Sea that broke in upon us from all Quarters, with an impetuous Force, conſpired with the Violence of the Wind to cut off all Hopes of Safety from us; and we had no other Choice before us, but that diſmal one of periſhing in the Waters if we fled out of our Houſes, or of being buried under their Ruins if we continued in them. In this fearful Suſpence we were held for ſeveral Hours; for the Violence of the Storm began about Eight of the Clock in the Morning, and did not ſenſibly abate till between Twelve and One. Within which ſpace of Time, the Wind and Sea together demoliſhed a conſiderable Part of the Town, laid the Church even with the Ground, deſtroyed above 120 white Inhabitants, and 250 Slaves, beſides ruining almoſt all the Store-houſes in the Town, together with all the Goods that were in them, which amounted to a conſiderable Value. We had at Port-Royal two very formidable Enemies to encounter at the ſame Time, viz. the Wind, and the Sea. The Situation of the Place, it being on all Sides ſurrounded with the Sea, rendring it more expoſed than other Places to the Fury of that boiſterous Element. Our only Defence againſt the Sea, conſiſts in a great Wall run all along on the Eaſtern Shore of the Town; the Side where we apprehend moſt Danger. This Wall is raiſed about nine Foot above the Surface of the Water, and may be about ſix or ſeven Foot broad: And for this 20 Years paſt, for ſo long the Wall has been built, it has proved a ſufficient Security to the Town. But in this fatal Storm, the Sea ſcorned to be reſtrained by ſo mean a Bulwark: For the Wind having, as I obſerved before, raiſed it very much above its ordinary Height, it broke over the Wall with ſuch a Force as nothing was able to withſtand. Two or three Rows of Houſes that were next to the Wall and run parallel with it, were intirely waſhed away; among which was the Church, a handſome Building and very ſtrong: Which yet was ſo perfectly demoliſhed, that ſcarce one Brick was left upon another. A conſiderable Part of the Wall of the Caſtle was thrown down, notwithſtanding its being of a prodigious Thickneſs, and founded altogether upon a Rock; and the whole Fort was in the utmoſt Danger of being loſt, the Sea breaking quite over the Walls of it, though they are reckoned to ſtand 30 Foot above the Water. This Information I had from the Captain of the Fort, and other other Officers that were in it during the Storm, who all told me, that they expected every Minute to have the Fort washed away, and gave up themselves and the whole Garrison for Lost. In the highest Streets of the Town, and those that are most remote from the Sea, the Water rose to between five and six Foot. And at the same Time the Current was so rapid, that it was scarce possible for the strongest Person to keep his Legs, or to prevent himself from being carried away by it. In these Circumstances we were obliged to betake ourselves to our Chambers and upper Rooms, where yet we ran the utmost Hazard of perishing by the Fall of our Houses, which trembled and shook over our Heads to a Degree that was scarce credible. The Roofs were for the most Part carried off by the Violence of the Wind; and particularly in the House to which mine, and several other Families had betaken ourselves, the Gabel End was beaten in with such a Force, that a large Parcel of Bricks fell quite through the Garret Floor into the Chamber where we were, and had they fallen upon any of us must infallibly have beaten out our Brains: But God was pleased to order it so as that not a Soul received any Hurt.

There was the Morning on which the Storm happened, a good Fleet of Ships riding in the Harbour of Port-Royal, most of which had taken in their full Freight, and were to have returned Home in a few Days, had they not been prevented by this terrible Storm, which left but one Vessel in the Harbour, besides four Sail of Men of War, all of which had their Masts and Rigging blown away, and the Ships themselves, tho' in as secure a Harbour as any in the West-Indies, were as near to Destruction as it was possible to be, and to escape it. But the most sensible Proof of the unaccountable Force of the Wind and Sea together, was the vast Quantity of Stones that were thrown over the Town Wall; which, as I observed before, stands nine Foot above the Surface of the Water; and yet such a prodigious Number of Stones were forced over it, that almost an Hundred Negroes were employed for near six Weeks together to throw them back again into the Sea; and some of these Stones were so vastly big, that it was as much as nine or ten Men could do to heave them back again over the Wall. I am sensible this Part of the Relation will seem a little strange; but yet I doubt not of obtaining your Belief, when I affirm it to you for a certain Truth. But Port-Royal was not the only Place that suffered in the Storm. At Kingston also great Damage was done; Abundance of Houses were blown quite down and many more were so miserably broken and shattered, as to be little better than none. Abundance of rich Goods were spoiled by the Rain, the Warehouses being either blown down or uncovered. But they had only one Enemy to encounter, viz. the Wind, and were not prevented by the Sea from forsaking their falling Houses, and betaking themselves to the Savannahs, or open Fields, where they were obliged to throw themselves all along upon the Ground to prevent being blown away; and yet even in Kingston some Persons were killed; among whom was a very worthy Gentlewoman, the Wife of the Reverend Mr. May, Minister of the Town, and the Bishop of London's Commissary. She was killed by the Fall of their House, as she lay with her Husband under a large Table, who had also the Misfortune of having his own Leg broke. All the Vessels that rode in the Harbour of Kingston, which were between 40 and 50 Sail, were either driven on Shore, or overset and sunk. Abundance of the Men and Goods were lost, and one could not forbear being surprised to see large Ships with all their Lading in them thrown quite up upon the dry Land. And nothing could afford a more dismal Prospect than the Harbour did the next Day, which was covered over with Nothing but Wrecks and dead Bodies. At Spanish-Town, no body indeed was killed, but a great many had very narrow Escapes, some Families having scarcely quitted their Houses before they fell down flat at once, without giving any Warning. The King's House stands indeed, but it is all uncovered, and the Stables, Coach-House, &c. are quite demolished. The River near to which the Town is situated, swelled to such a Degree as was never before known; and I was assured by the Minister of the Place, the Reverend Mr. Scot, that it rose full 40 Foot perpendicular above its ordinary Mark, and did incredible Damage to the Estates that lay bordering upon it. From other Parts of the Country we had also very melancholly Accounts of the great Losses they had sustain'd, and particularly at Old-Harbour, a Village built at a little Distance from that Shore, the Sea made such Haste to devour, as most unexpectedly to intercept many poor Creatures before they had Time to make their Escape; and almost 40 poor Souls perished together in one House, and whilst they only sought Security from the Wind, exposed themselves to be destroyed by the Sea, from which they apprehended no Danger. In Clarendon also, and Vere Parishes, great Mischief was done; in the latter, the Minister, Mr. White, had his Leg broke by the Fall of the House where he was, not to mention several Persons that were killed outright. But I should quite tire out your Patience, should I undertake to give you a particular particular account of the Damage that was done by the Storm in all the Parts of the Iſland. It ſhall ſuffice therefore to ſay, that the Damage which the Trading Part of the Iſland has ſuſtained by the Loſs of their Shipping and Goods, is not to be valued; and on the other Hand, it is impoſſible to ſay how deeply the Planting Intereſt has ſhared in this common Calamity, by the Loſs of their Dwelling-Houſes and Sugar-works, and many other Ways: And in ſhort, had the Fury of the Storm laſted much longer, the whole Iſland muſt have been one generał Wreck, and Nothing but final and univerſal Ruin could have enſued.——

London, February 25.

On Saturday arrived two Mails from Holland, and Yeſterday one from France.

Moſcow, Jan. 28. The Duke of Holſtein's Country Houſe was lately burnt down to the Ground. The Czar has ordered his Gentleman of the Horſe Kaſchelloſ, to go to Peterbourg to receive and afterwards to conduct hither the two young Princes of Heſſe-Hombourg, who are daily expected to arrive there with the Baron de Levenwolde: The eldeſt is about 20 Years of Age, and the other between 15 and 16. Preparations are making here for a great Maſquerade to be in three or four Weeks, like what was made ſome Years ago at Petersbourg, from whence variety of Dreſſes are coming for that Purpoſe, and the new Turkiſh Envoy who is expected here againſt that Time, is to be received with extraordinary Marks of Diſtinction by this Court, who intend to procure him Diverſions of all kinds. The Council of War has received Orders from the Czar to ſend an Ingineer immediately to Derbent, and to compleat all the Regiments.

Vienna, Feb. 10. We have received Letters from Conſtantinople dated the 5th of January, which take Notice, that the Report ſpread there about the End of November laſt that the Army of the Rebels in Perſia dwindled away and would not be able to take Iſpahan, had proved falſe, or elſe that their Army had been ſtrongly reinforced; for the Beginning of January an Expreſs arrived at Conſtantinople from the Paſha of Van, upon the Confines of Perſia, with Advice, that Miri-Weys the Chief of the Rebels had at laſt taken Iſpahan upon Capitulation with the Inhabitants, and had put the King to Death, with as many of his Sons as he could lay Hands on, beſides ſeveral of his Miniſters and Great Officers; after which he declared himſelf King by the Name of Sciach Mahomet, and created a new Set of Officers both Civil and Military, appointing for his Chief Vizier one Iſmud Devlet, who held that Poſt under the late King, but was depoſed, and had his Eyes put out, upon Suſpicion of holding Correſpondence with this Miri-Weys. On the other Side, theſe Advices add, that a Son of the late King's, who was Viceroy or Han at Casbin, hearing of his Father's Death and the Loſs of Iſpahan, had declared himſelf King, and was acknowledged as ſuch in his Government; but had hitherto got but a ſmall Army to ſupport his Title. The Porte had not yet received the Confirmation of this News from any other Paſha on the Confines, however the Truth of it was not at all queſtioned at Conſtantinople.

Vienna, Feb. 13. The Emperour has ſent his Picture ſet with Diamonds of a great Value to Count de Wackerbarth Miniſter of Poland, and General of his Infantry. It is reported that the Conſtitution Unigenitus begins to raiſe Troubles in the Dioceſs of Liege.

Bern, Feb. 20. The Cantons of Fribourg and Soleure thoroughly approve of the late Conduct of the Magiſtrates of Lucerne with Regard to the Pope's Nuncio, and highly blame his Method of proceeding towards them; mean while, their Differences with the Nuncio widen daily.

Madrid, Feb. 16. The Infanta arrived at Buitrago the 14th Inſtant in the Evening, and was received at her alighting from her Coach by their Catholick Majeſties, and the Prince and Princeſs of Aſturias, with great Demonſtration of Joy; the Infante Don Carlos and his Spouſe the Infanta, ſupped together, and afterwards ſaw their Majeſties ſup, who came back the 15th to this City with the Prince and Princeſs of Aſturias; the Prince Don Carlos and the Infanta are expected here to Night; their Catholick Majeſties intend to meet their Royal Highneſſes at ſome Diſtance out of Town, and accompany them at their Entry, Illuminations and Fireworks being already prepared on that Occaſion; and the Day that their Majeſties and Royal Highneſſes go to the Church of our Lady of Atocha, all the Streets are to be adorned with Tapiſtry, and the great Square illuminated. Colonel Stanhope, his Britannick Majeſty's Ambaſſadour at this Court, is very much indiſpoſed. Advices from Cadiz ſay, that the Galleons commanded by Lieutenant-General Don Balthazar de Guevara, arrived there the 8th Inſtant, conſiſting of four Men of War, and 10 Ships richly laden with Gold, and Silver coined, to the Value of 12,319,559 Piaſtres, viz. 29,266 Piaſtres for the King's Accompt, and upwards of 10,000,000 for Accompt of private People, with a vaſt Quantity of different Kinds of Merchandize. The King has commanded, that out of the Treaſure now brought by theſe Galleons, 5 per Cent. upon the Silver ſhall be carried into his Cuſtom-Houſes, and 2 per Cent. upon the Gold.

Paris, March 3. The new Council aſſembled for the firſt Time on Sunday laſt at the King's Palace, compoſed of the King's Majeſty, the Duke of Orleans, the Duke of Chartres, the Duke of Bourbon, the Cardinal de Noailles, the Biſhop of Frejus, the Keeper of the Seals, the Secretaries of State, and M. Peletier des Forts. Advices from Francfort ſay, that the Cardinal de Saxe Zeits, principal Imperial Commiſſary at the Dyet at Presbourg, died lately at Tirnau in upper Hungary. On the 2d Inſtant in the Morning, a Man was found dead in the Streets, and cut quite into two Pieces off at the Middle. The Edict againſt Duels is publiſhed, confirming the Penalties appointed by former Ordinances and Declarations, and enjoyns that if one Gentleman ſtrikes another, the Striker ſhall be degraded and condemned to 15 Years Impriſonment.

An Infallible Cure for the STONE and

GRAVEL, whether in the Reins or Bladder, by an incomparable Chymical Liquor, which in the moſt racking Fits gives inſtant Eaſe, and perfectly frees the Patient from all Pains in the Back, and thoſe Pains ſo much like the Cholick; dilates the Ureters, makes them ſlippery, that ſmall Stones and Gravel may paſs from the Reins, to be voided viſibly with Urine, without Pain; cleanſes the Kidneys, Bladder, and all the urinary Paſſages from ſlimy calculous Matter, certainly takes off all Heat, Pains and Stoppage of Urine, and abſolutely breakes and diſſolves all large Stones (poſſible to be diſſolved) whether in the Kidneys or Bladder, ſo as intirely to cure the Diſtemper; aſſuredly prevents the Stone in thoſe that are only troubled with Gravel, and for all Diſorders in the Reins and Bladder cannot be parallel'd. Is ſold only at Jacob's Coffee-houſe, againſt the Angel and Crown Tavern in Threadneedle-ſtreet, behind the Royal Exchange, at 3 s. 6 d. a Bottle, with Directions.

The pleaſant ODORIFEROUS TINC-

TURE for the Breath, Teeth, and Gums a few Drops of which inſtantly make the moſt offenſive Breath ſmell incomparably fine and charming, and in a very ſhort time perfectly cures, ſo that a diſagreeable Breath will never return; it certainly makes the blackeſt and moſt foul Teeth extreamly white, clean and beautiful at once uſing, infallibly preſerves them from decaying, and thoſe a little decayed from growing worſe, abſolutely cures the Scurvy in the Gums, tho' never ſo invererate, cauſing the Fleſh to grow up to the Teeth again, when almoſt eaten quite away, and infallibly faſtens looſe Teeth to Admiration. In a Word, for moſt delicately perfuming and quickly curing an ill ſcented Breath, for immediately making the blackeſt Teeth moſt excellently white, certainly faſtening them when looſe, effectually preſerving them from rotting or decaying, and aſſuredly curing the Scurvy in the Gums, it has not its Equal in the World. Is now ſold only at Mr. Rudford's Toyſhop, at the Roſe and Crown againſt St. Clement's Church-yard in the Strand, near Arundel-ſtreet-End. Price 3 s. 6 d. a Bottle, with Directions.
